81. Defendant Microsoft's acts of infringement have damaged Potter Voice Technologies in an amount to be proven at trial, but in no event less than a reasonable royalty. Defendant Microsoft's infringement of Potter Voice Technologies' rights under the '659 patent will continue to damage Potter Voice Technologies causing irreparable harm, for which there is no adequate remedy at law, unless enjoined by this Court.

82. On information and belief, Defendant Microsoft knew of the '659 patent and its contents from about 2007 when the '659 patent was cited in the prosecution of U.S. Patent No. 7,299,181. And on information and belief, Defendant Microsoft willfully infringed the '659 patent thus entitling Potter Voice Technologies to increased damages under 35 U.S.C. § 284 and to attorneys' fees and costs incurred in litigating this action under 35 U.S.C. § 285.

DEFENDANT NOKIA

83. On information and belief, Defendant Nokia has been and now is infringing the '659 patent in the State of Colorado, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by, among other things, making, using, importing, offering to sell, and/or selling in the United States digital computers using Windows Speech Commands and/or Google Voice Actions which embody the inventions claimed in the '659 patent, including but not limited to the Nokia Lumia 710 and all reasonably similar products. On information and belief, Defendant Nokia indirectly infringes by contributing to its customers' infringement using Windows Speech Commands and/or Google Voice Actions on the Nokia Lumia 710 and all reasonably similar products. On information and belief, Defendant Nokia indirectly infringes by actively inducing its customers to use Windows Speech Commands and/or Google Voice Actions on the Nokia Lumia 710 and all reasonably similar products. On information and belief, Defendant Nokia knew or should have known its actions would induce and/or contribute to infringement of the '659 patent.

84. On information and belief, Defendant Nokia will continue to infringe the '659 patent unless enjoined by this Court.

85. Defendant Nokia's acts of infringement have damaged Potter Voice Technologies in an amount to be proven at trial, but in no event less than a reasonable royalty. Defendant Nokia's infringement of Potter Voice Technologies' rights under the '659 patent will continue to damage Potter Voice Technologies causing irreparable harm, for which there is no adequate remedy at law, unless enjoined by this Court.

JOINDER

86. As discussed in the preceding paragraphs, on information and belief, Defendants infringe the asserted patents by making, using, selling, offering to sell, and/or importing specific accused instrumentalities that are common to Defendants including specific hardware devices and particular software. Thus, Potter Voice Technologies asserts rights to relief against Defendants with respect to or arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences relating to the making, using, importing into the United States, offering for sale, or selling of the same accused products. Moreover, because specific accused instrumentalities and asserted patents are common to Defendants, questions of fact common to Defendants will arise in the action.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

87. Wherefore, Potter Voice Technologies respectfully requests that this Court enter judgment against Defendants as follows:

- a. For judgment that Defendants have infringed and continues to infringe the claims of the '659 Patent;
- b. For preliminary and permanent injunction against Defendants and its respective officers, directors, agents, servants, affiliates, employees, divisions, branches, subsidiaries, parents, and all others acting in active concert therewith from infringement of the '659 Patent;
- c. For judgment that Defendant Apple's, Sony's, and Microsoft's acts of infringement and/or contributing to and/or inducing infringement have been and are willful;

- d. For an accounting of all damages caused by Defendants' acts of infringement;
- e. For damages to be paid by Defendants adequate to compensate Potter Voice Technologies for Defendants' infringement, including interest, costs and disbursement as justified under 35 U.S.C. § 284;
- f. For judgment finding this to be an exceptional case, and awarding Potter Voice Technologies attorney fees under 35 U.S.C. § 285; and
- g. For such relief at law and in equity as the Court may deem just and proper.
